CHED opens scholarship for MIT at UC

Information Technology college instructors throughout Northern Luzon have a chance to finish their Masteral or Doctoral Degree in Baguio City under scholarship of the Commission on Higher Education (CHED).

This was announced by Dean Nancy Flores of the College of Information and Computing Sciences of the University of the Cordilleras (UC-CICS) after receiving the go signal to resume the scholarship program this third trimester for the fourth batch. Enrollment starts January 10, 2007.

The University of the Cordilleras has been identified as the only school north of Manila accredited by CHED under its Faculty Development Program for Master in Information Technology (MIT). The FDP is a component of CHED's

Higher Education Development Project that aims to upgrade the academic qualifications of tertiary level faculty members to master and doctorate degree levels. Scholars benefit from free tuition and school fees, monthly stipend amounting from P4,000 for part-time scholars to P8,000 for full-time scholars, transportation allowance, book allowance and substitute assistance.

UC's MIT is a non-thesis program that may be completed in 6 trimesters for full-time scholars or 7 trimesters for part-time scholars. The program started in January 2006 with the first batch consisting of 14 students; currently, UC holds the record of the Delivering HEI for having the most number of scholars under the CHED-FDP with faculty scholars coming from as far as Region 4.
